Or, think of the need of the world. The words were made alive to me and I felt like I was truly understanding the truth of what I wrote. All of what you articulated there goes back to the main point of the author and the beginnings of her pursuit of God: why should we value these things? It does. Over the last few centuries we have discovered that reality is a lot more complicated than we thought – that everything is made of atoms, which are mostly empty space, for example. Moses said he was slow of speech and he angered God. The Father turned His back on His only begotten Son, Jesus, who was blameless and perfect, and permitted Him to endure the worst imaginable suffering—physically, emotionally, and spiritually—for the sake of the eternal salvation of humanity at large. Listen and be a friend, and then smile and go on your way, trusting your God and expecting
