My tender beautiful cavalier when will I have you for myself? His imagination is precise and believable. When I was four years old I found a way to the roof of my world. I did not know what to do. Their iron legs of the horse do not bend. Its maps are black, rising from nothing, describing, in their slow ascent into themselves, their own voyage, its emptiness, the bleak temperate necessity of its completion. You put your watch to your ear. Out on the street people are lying down with their knees in the air, tears fill their eyes, ashes enter their ears.

The exhausted light falls like a bandage over my eyes. The blaze of promise. Qu look there among the trembling feathers Of the copper beech, there, you see them birds making Ready to ride the dawn skies.
