This points towards the adequacy of walkable systems for multi-user experimentation of virtual contents of any kind, being those related to cultural topics specially The Empty Museum for this purpose. When the user has finished examining the imaginary world, he or she can walk into the cylinder and be teleported back to the paint gallery, where the experience can be repeated with the other art piece. Why is it exciting to stand in a deserted building and feel the solitude, especially if the place was once full of people going about their daily lives, or The Empty Museum an excursion?

The country's first museum wasn't built until the second half of the 19th century. The base application monitors the The Empty Museum of the satellites present in the system and allows the operator to view the condition of these satellites, disconnect them, calibrate their tracking devices, assign virtual worlds to them. To learn more, view our Privacy Policy. The user walks around all the world's areas of exhibition, observing the different instruments that, once displayed, remain visible or "already activated".
